

Ottawa, January 27th 2012

Entraide budgétaire Ottawa is a Francophone agency helping low-income people living in Ottawa in both official languages on financial literacy matters. Thanks to a one year grant from the City of Ottawa and a dedicated team of volunteers, we are seeking low-income self-employed workers wanting to file late income-tax returns. Also, thanks to a partnership with Canadart from the Vanier Community Service Center we can help self-employed persons to create a basic book keeping system to facilitate the completion of their income-tax returns.

We are currently looking for 40 self-employed persons (or persons who were self-employed and are late filing their income tax) who could benefit from one of these free and professional services. We are looking for consumers, who:

- Are self-employed
- Have an annual income of less than $ 30 000.00
- Are late in submitting their income tax return

Places are limited and we will accept the first 40 individuals who contact us

Persons interested will be invited to attend an information session. Persons that could benefit from this free service are invited to contact Jean-Marc Lanoue, Coordinator Income tax services, Entraide budgétaire at 613-746-0400 ext. 203 or by e-mail at jml.eb.otawa@gmail.com

«Parce que la vie est plus qu'une question d'argent...»